

VI. ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A consumer electronics device, such as a cell phone, is designed to record all real time communications occurring on it. Recording is started when a communication is initiated, either by the user making or accepting a call. Recordings are stored and organized for ease of retrieval. Recordings can be forwarded to a remote user.

1001552660